The second email was about the competitive grant program. As part of Governor Shapiro's 2025-26 budget proposal, a new competitive $30 million dollar grant for fire departments has been added for consideration by the legislature. This would be a separate funding pool in addition to the $30 million annual grant we have today. It is only in its first draft and feedback is being requested.

Lastly, Chief Keiser stated that Compleat Restorations will again offer (2) $1,000 scholarships. The applications are due April 15th and are open to any high school senior who is a first responder or a child of a first responder. The application has been emailed to the Chiefs Assn. members.

Todd also shared that the LCFA was asked for their financial support, and they agreed to provide funding towards the positions for the next three years at 75%, 50%, and 25%. Lancaster County has a hiring freeze in place right now, but advertising for these two positions should be soon. Three job descriptions have been created for these positions, including suppression-level, non-suppression level, and entry level instructors. The goal of hiring the two positions is to hold three fire academy courses per year, with a minimum class size of 20 students, and a maximum of 30 students (with an additional assistant instructor). It is also the goal to offer more classes in addition to the fire academy classes.

Ken also spoke about the new "blended" instruction Essentials pilot program that the SFA has approved for Lancaster. The lectures will be online, requiring interactive attendance, and homework. The students must then attend in person for the skills portions of the classes.
